

“Traffic! Seems like it’s getting worse every day. If your daily commute feels like being trapped in a parking lot, the answer to your problem is just around the corner. Take the ROCKET BUS. It’s out of this world.”

Monologue:

I know I'm late for work, but you would not believe the morning I've had! Last night, I put all my clothes into the washer and dryer since most of them were dirty. To my surprise, they all shrank about three sizes after coming out of the dryer! I only had my pajamas I slept in, so I wore them, as you can see. Then, when I went outside to get into my car, my car door wouldn't open. I put my hands onto the freezing car window and saw that my keys were inside of the car! I had no choice but to walk to work. As I walked down the street, I heard something come from a nearby alley. Out of curiosity, I went to see what it was. Let me tell ya, big mistake. There were about ten, no, twenty ferocious street cats staring me down. I slowly backed away, but it was too late. They chased me down the alley. About five jumped onto me and attacked me. This is why there are a ton of scratches on my body. See? By some miracle, I was able to escape. I thought to myself, how can this morning get any worse? Trust me, it did. I was a block away from the office when I went to the coffee shop right around the corner and got some hot coffee. I realized that I was about to be late for work. I hurried to get out of the shop, and of course, I tripped and spilled the coffee all over the place. My work bag, my pajamas, my shoes, were soaked! I tried to wash off as much as I could in the bathroom, but it's still there, as you can see. So, that's why I'm late. (It try not to let it happen again. What? It's daylight savings time? Oh, I'm an hour early? Oh, then never-mind.

STUDENT 1 walks to a desk next to STUDENT 2 and SITS DOWN in the desk. There is a DULL CHATTER from students in the room.

STUDENT 1

Hey (name). How was your weekend?

STUDENT 2

Oh, you know. My dad ran over our dog in the drive way and killed her.

STUDENT 1 (shocked)

Oh my gosh, are you kidding me?

STUDENT 2

Nope. And I'm waiting on some test results.

STUDENT 1 (confused)

Test results — for your dog?

STUDENT 2

No — COVID.

STUDENT 1 (shocked)

What? Why are you even here?

STUDENT 2

Because I didn't want to be remote for film, duh!
